About Our Ingredients

Elderberry has been found to have antibacterial, antiviral, and anti-inflammatory properties in research studies. The Journal of The American Botanical Council cites a clinical trial supporting the use of a standardized elderberry syrup extract for the treatment of symptoms associated with influenza. The data suggests a 50% reduction in both the severity and duration of symptoms.

The American Botanical Council (ABC) Clinical Guide to Elderberry suggests using a standardized liquid extract for 3-5 days, starting at the first sign of flu symptoms. * (1)

Elderberry is rich in nutrients, such as carbohydrates, proteins, fats, fatty acids, organic acids, minerals, vitamins, and essential oils. Polyphenols, known for their antioxidant activity, are the most important group of bioactive compounds present in elderberry in relatively high concentration. The high antioxidant activity of elderberry fruit is associated with its therapeutic properties.

Elderberry has been used in folk medicine as a diaphoretic, antipyretic, and diuretic agent. In recent years it was also found to have antibacterial, antiviral, antidepressant and anti-tumor and hypoglycemic properties, and to reduce body fat and lipid concentration. * (2)
